

Template share and other registers

User notes

This document sets out the registers and other documents which companies are required to keep and maintain under the Companies Act 1993 or which should be maintained as a matter of good administrative practice.

Company records must be kept in a written form or in a manner that allows the documents and information to be easily accessible. We recommend keeping an electronic copy of the registers together with signed resolutions and minutes of meetings.

Remember, the details filed with the Companies Office do not constitute a company's statutory registers. Registers and records need to be created, maintained and held by the Company in addition to the Companies Office records.

The User Notes and the statements in the footer below (all marked in red) are included to assist in the preparation of this document. They are for reference only – you should delete all user notes and the statements in the footer from the final form of your document.

The use of [square brackets] around black text means that:

- ▲ the requested details need to be inserted
- ▲ there are different options for you to consider within a clause
- ▲ the whole clause is optional and you need to consider whether to include it, based on the company's circumstances and the user notes.

Before finalising your document, check for all square brackets to ensure you have considered the relevant option and ensure that all square brackets have been deleted.

If you delete any clauses or schedules, remember to cross reference check the document.

DOCUMENTATION CHECKLIST

- ▲ This is a list of documents which companies are either required to keep or which companies should maintain as a matter of good administrative practice.
- ▲ The documents marked with an asterisk must be kept at the Company's registered office for seven years. If they are held elsewhere, notice of that fact must be provided to the Registrar of Companies within 10 working days of the records being kept elsewhere. After seven years, the documents must continue to be retained by the Company for inspection by shareholders, but do not need to be held at the Company's registered office.

RESTRICTIONS ON THE TRANSFER OF SHARES

[User note: The description of restrictions on transfers of shares set out below reflects the restrictions in the Simmonds Stewart Template Constitution. If the Company has a different constitution you will need to refer to the transfer restrictions (if any) set out in that constitution. If the shares are subject to restrictions under the terms of the issue of those shares, you need to describe this below.]

The constitution of the Company, a copy of which may be inspected at the Company's registered office, states that no shares may be transferred other than in accordance with clause 5.2 of that constitution.

User notes

- ▲ The Company must maintain a share register that records the shares issued by the Company within the last 10 years. Failure to maintain the share register is an offence.
- ▲ If shares are held by a trust, the trust itself cannot be listed as the registered holder of the shares – instead, the trustees of the trust must be listed as holding the shares as joint shareholders.
- ▲ An agent (e.g. a lawyer or a share registry provider) may maintain the share register on behalf of a company.
- ▲ The share register must state, with respect to each class of shares (e.g. ordinary, preference shares, etc.):
  - a whether the shares are subject to any restrictions or limitations on transfer under the Company's constitution or the terms of issue of the shares and where any document setting out any restrictions on transfer can be inspected;
  - b the names, alphabetically arranged, and the latest known address of each person who is, or has within the last 10 years been, a shareholder;
  - c the number of shares of that class held by each shareholder within the last 10 years; and
  - d the date of any:

- a interests he or she has in a transaction or proposed transaction involving the Company that may or will conflict with the Company's interests; and
- b sale or transfer of an interest the director holds (whether directly or indirectly) in the Company's shares.

Exceptions to these requirements apply in certain circumstances.

- ▲ The Companies Act 1993 also requires the board of a company to disclose details of any remuneration, insurance, indemnities or other benefits provided by the Company to directors under sections 161 and/or 162 of the Companies Act 1993.
- ▲ The Company is required to keep and maintain a record of these disclosures in an interests register under section 189(1)(c) of the Companies Act 1993. The register must be made available for inspection by shareholders. Failure to maintain the register is an offence.
- ▲ In general, a director will be interested in a transaction for the purposes of the Companies Act 1993 if the director:
  - a is also a party to the transaction;
  - b will or may gain a material financial benefit from the transaction;
  - c has a material financial interest in a party to the transaction;
  - d is a director, officer, or trustee of another party to the transaction, or another person who will or may gain a material financial benefit from the transaction (exceptions are provided for companies within the same company group);
  - e is closely related (i.e. is a parent, child, spouse or partner) to another party to the transaction, or another person who will or may gain a material financial benefit from the transaction; or
  - f is otherwise materially interested in the transaction.
- ▲ Disclosure can be made on an individual transaction basis. A general disclosure can also be made to the effect that a director is a shareholder/director/officer or trustee of a company or other entity and is to be considered as interested in any transaction between that company or other entity and the Company.
